ACQUITY UPLC FLR Detector

The Waters ACQUITY UPLC Fluorescence (FLR) Detector is a multi-channel, multi-wavelength fluorescence detector designed for use in the ACQUITY UPLC H-Class system. Optimized for Ultra Performance Liquid Chromatography, the FLR detector's innovative axially illuminated, low-volume flow cell design and low-noise electronics result in a detector that brings unsurpassed sensitivity and selectivity to UPLC.

Detector wavelength range is 200-900nm. Signal-to-noise ratio is >1000 (Water Raman band). The detector incorporates four data channels, two wavelength pairs per channel, and supports both 2D and 3D scanning injection modes. Access to detector status # wavelength, lamp on/off # and diagnostic information is supported through the ACQUITY UPLC System Instrument Console. Instrument communications with the host computer are through Ethernet communications protocols.
